FOREWORD

Those who planned the 1944 Oracle Annual seek to present in its pages the unwinding film of the record of one year in the history of Bay View. In this book the pattern of Oracle Annuals is not entirely changed, for student life is not. A touch has even been kept of the beauty of the setting of the school because that remains unmarred by three years of war.

But as an observer scans these pages, he must become increasingly aware that high school students at Bay View are living primarily in the present. Theirs is in good part a training to meet the demands of war, urgent, ominous, not to be denied. Every true Bay View student hopes to serve his country now and to prepare for service in the years to come.

Hello Dorothy:-
 I never had much chance to talk music with you so I would like to take the opportunity right now, to tell you that I think you are a very fine violin player. I have greatly enjoyed working with you in orchestra, and I hope that I will have the occasion to play with you in some other orchestra

The backbone of war activities in the Milwaukee city high schools is the School Youth Victory Council which meets bi-monthly and has student representatives from all secondary schools.

Eugene Grieshaber, Chairman of the City Council, confers with the officers at a meeting in the School Administration building.

Editors for the Saturday paper drives are Beverly Savee, Statistician; Doris Busse, Chairman; and Gordon Goede, Chief Dispatcher, who coordinate trucking schedules and collection crews.

Eugene Grieshaber accepts from Valeria Bertoncini the Victory Corps banner made by girls of the Household Arts department.

iekarski receives the Minuteman banner from Long. The homeroom with the highest percentage on Tuesday displays the banner for the ensuing week.

Successful school-wide war drives comprise the business of Bay View's Victory Corps. Led by President Eugene Grieshaber, the corps promotes an aggressive, fully coordinated school-at-war program.

Creative Writers prepare War Copy which is read twice daily over the Public Address for the promotion of stamp and bond sales.

Over the air waves morning and afternoon travel the urgent messages written by Creative Writers. John Krainik, Stanley Nestal, and Henry Schade, announcers, make possible their stirring presentation.

Advanced typists prepare citations for people of Milwaukee County in appreciation services during the Fourth War Loan Drive.

Charles Meyer returns to buy a bond from Mr. Ralph Book, a faculty member now serving in the United States Navy, and has it credited to his old homeroom.

Dr. Korn leaves for Washington to tell of Bay View's part in the war effort and to help plan the Fifth War Loan Drive.

The Bay View library becomes a War Bond Victory Center as students purchase bonds from Miss Batz and Mr. Book at a regular Tuesday morning sale.

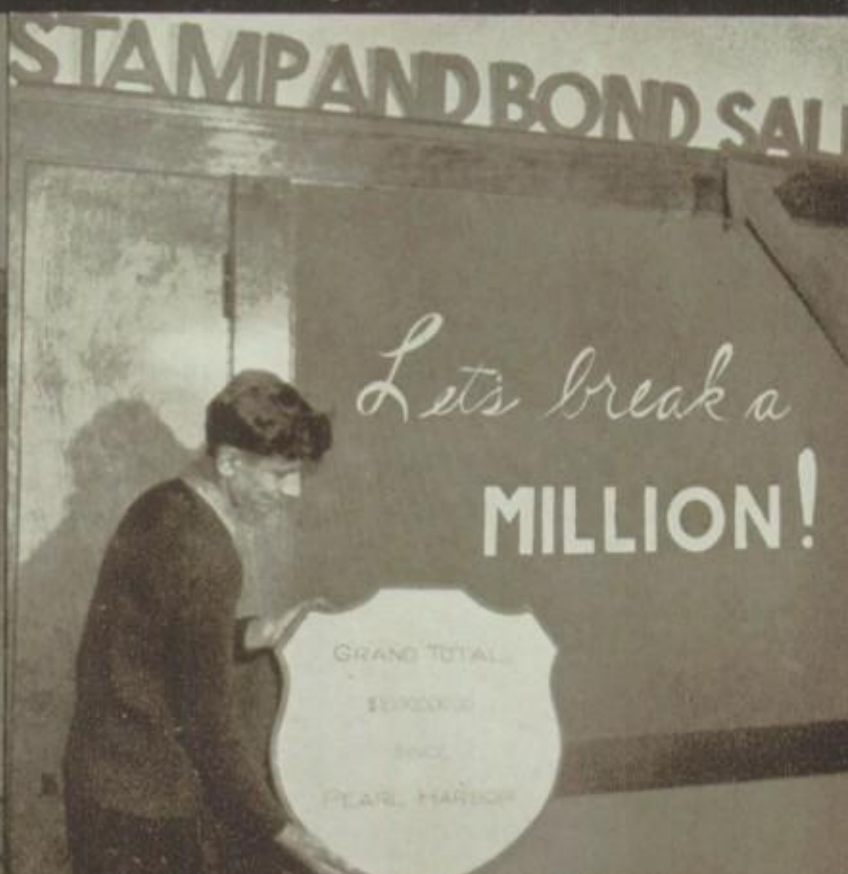

For a hundred per cent participation in the purchase of War Bonds and Stamps, the Victory Bonds for each classroom is "bestarred" by James Manske and Otto Menge.

Ben Barkin, of the local Finance Committee, presents citations for meritorious service to George Bauch, Shirley Felber, Lois Kern, Marion Kynaston, Gloria Linzmeyer, and James Manske.

The presence of Ben Barkin of the Milwaukee County War Finance Committee and Dr. Korn, Superintendent Potter hands to Ray Hanson, son of the first male graduate of Bay View, the bond which carried the purchases of the school over the million dollar mark.

Bay Viewites answered the challenge on the bulletin board April 25th. Sophomore Gilbert Schultz proudly displays the placard showing the coveted million dollar total.

Instead of spending their vacation leisurely, volunteer students help issue 1,700,000 copies of Ration Book Three for the State of Wisconsin. Grade school volunteers stack the books in boxes of one hundred each.

Classrooms remain active during the summer as student volunteers address the new books.

Throughout long, hot days, students under the supervision of armed guards seal envelopes containing the completed books.

A Household Arts sewing room is converted into a mail-sorting room as workers complete the final task in preparing the ration books for Wisconsin residents.

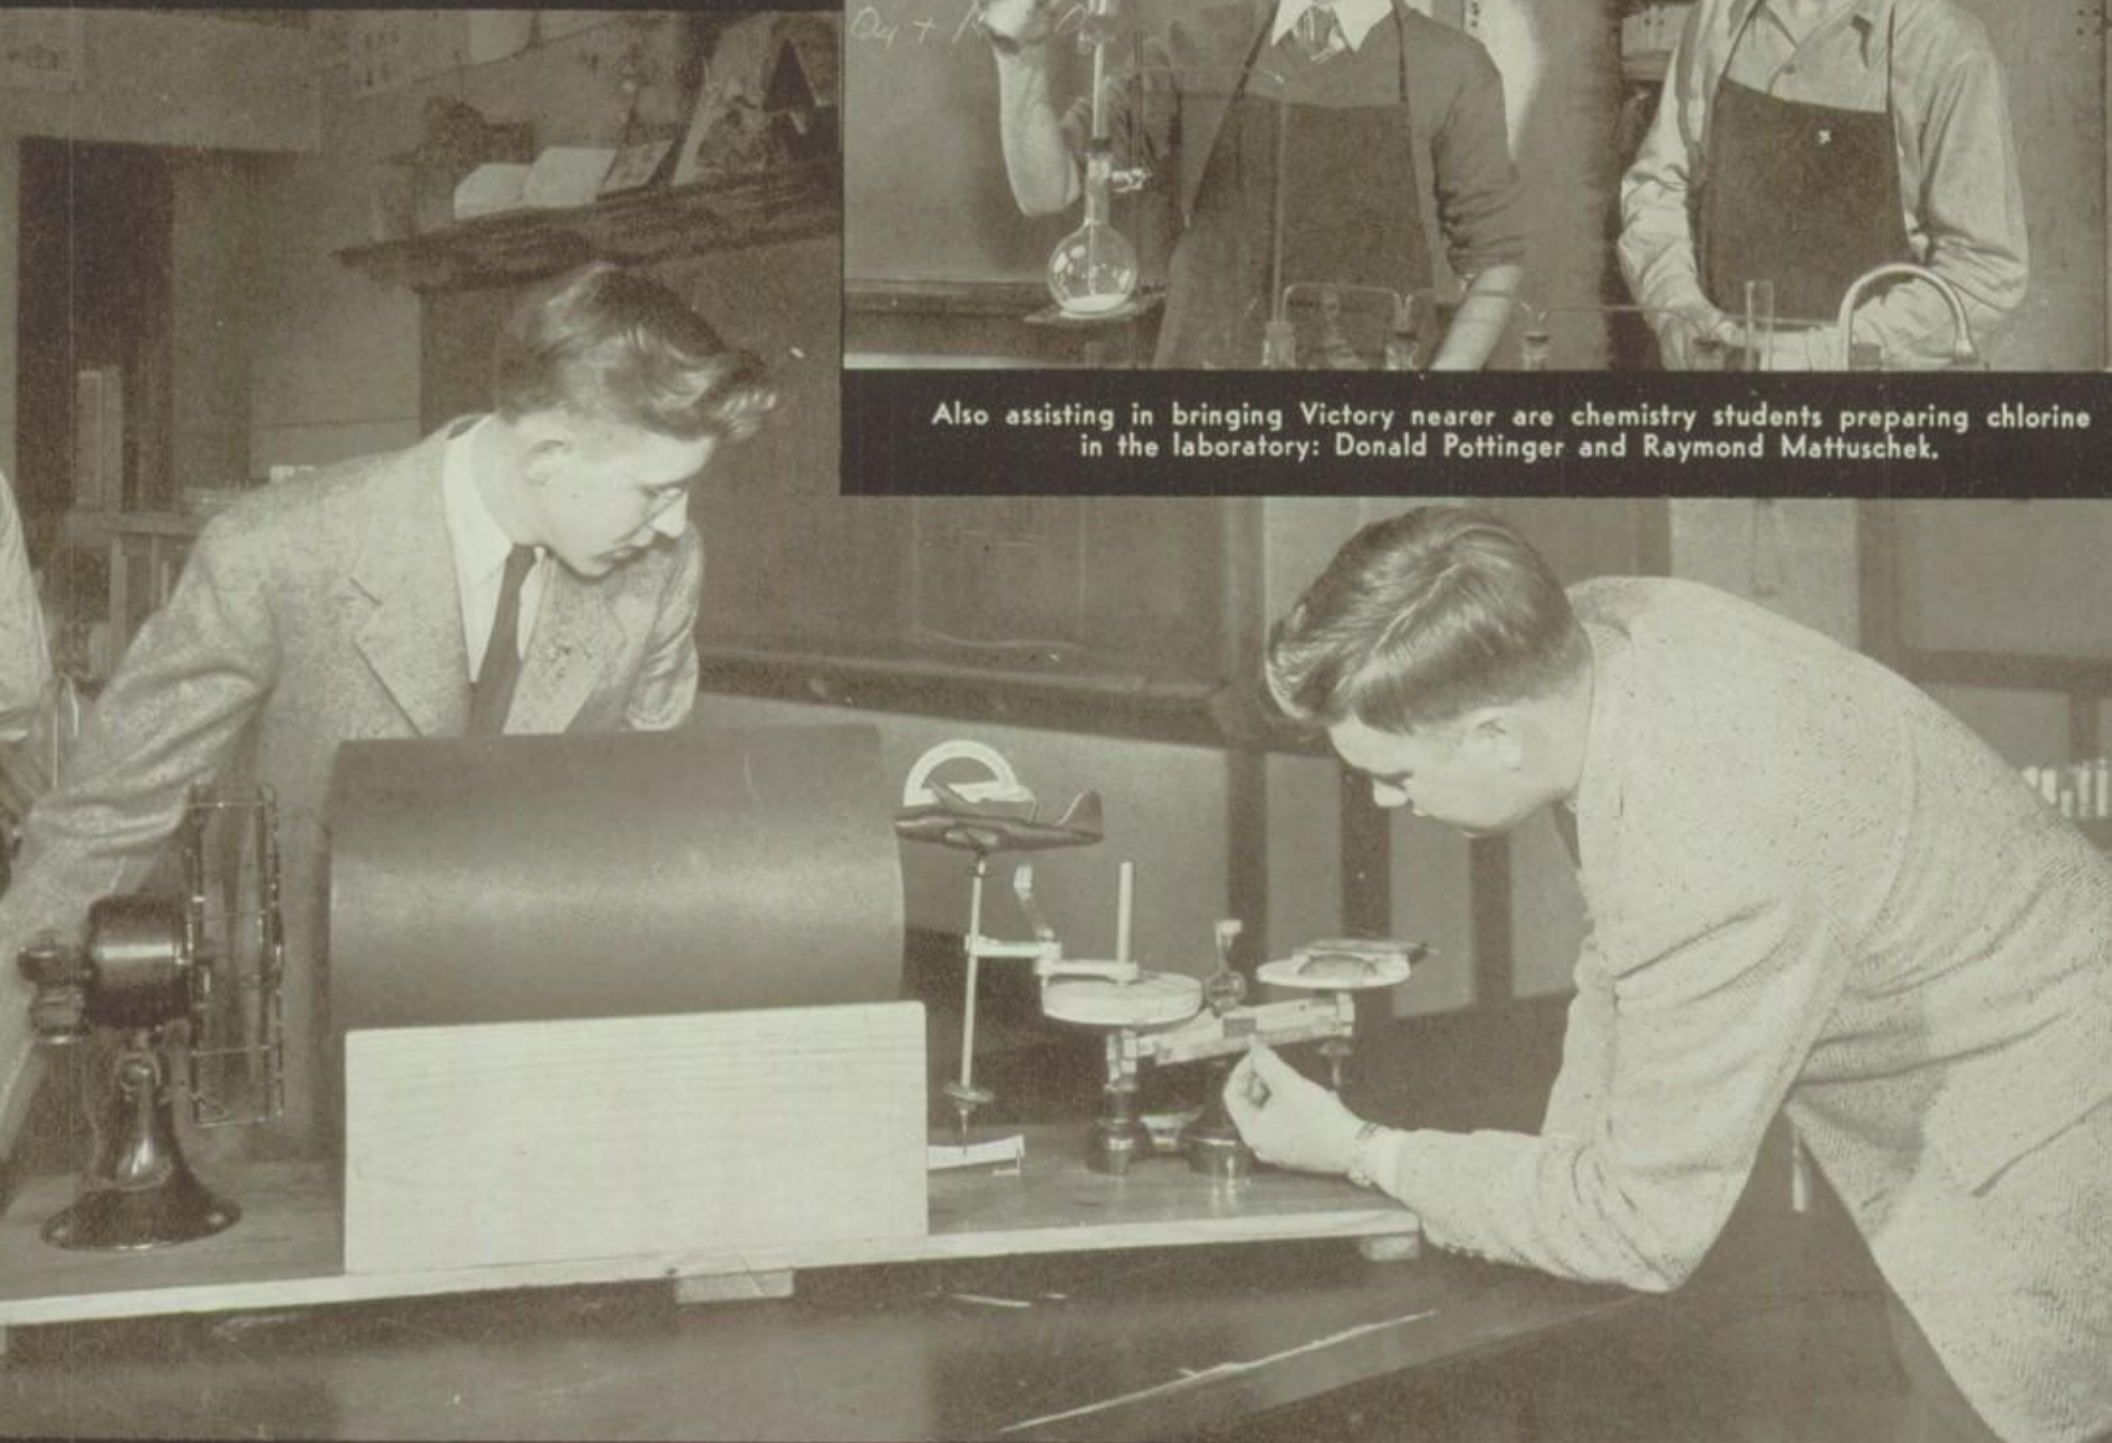

pump and carburetor of a bomber engine are studied by Dominic Foglia and Harold Kuehn, students of preflight aeronautics.

Alvin Reimer, Walter Kohlhoff, and Charles Ameringer install a lighting system for the aeronautics class preflight trainer.

Also assisting in bringing Victory nearer are chemistry students preparing chlorine in the laboratory: Donald Pottinger and Raymond Mattuschek.

A wind tunnel, the aeronautics project of Peter Werner, Robert Gordon, and William Huss, is tested here by Robert Genke and Robert Osterndorf.

Bernadine Kobs and Ruth Krahn are among the students who keep the files of Bay View alumni serving with the armed forces.

Grace Jirikowic, Tom Evans, Hoagland and Richard Zielinski students, are putting finishing touches on the War Memorial. It stands in place of honor in the corridor leading to the main entrance to the Operating the press, which during the past year has turned out many special announcements such as the Christmas bond folders, are: Gordon Meyer, Donald Gill, and Thomas Battenberg, Victory Printers.

The various military uses of America's No. 1 material are here vividly indicated. Helen G. holds a shell casing and cartridge contain

In two weeks starting September 20, Bay View collected over 14 tons of waste paper. Shown here weighing the paper in the southeast corner of the basement are: Betty Ann Ullenburg, Sam Murray, Duane Kopfer, Elmer Burghardt, George Gauer, Gerald Kornkven, Robert Osterndorf, Gordon Goede, and Otto Menge.

Mr. Barta's first semester freshmen receive congratulations from Patricia Keeney, Chairman of Paper Salvage Publicity, who very promptly records their astounding totals. As competition among all the home-rooms is keen, this group of newcomers is justly proud of its achievement.

Paper loaders Jerry Kornkven, Elmer Burghardt, Sam Murray, Gordon Goede, Bill Dorsey, and Sheridan Backus exultantly load paper after a fifteen-ton weekly collection in December.

Students "house clean" all waste paper from lockers. "At least a ton in each clean-up" is the slogan.

Competition between East and West Study Halls brought in a huge pile of scrap, a part of which is shown in West.

"Over the track to the beach heads!" shout the boys as they direct Bay View's salvage to the mills.

Margaret McCann and Phyllis Matthews remind householders to put out their scrap on Saturday morning.

The Papertroopers, working early on Saturday mornings, bring out paper to the curb in blocks not thoroughly canvassed by regular workers.

Marion Campbell mounts on the bulletin board the paper carton used to ship powdered eggs.

Another drive over, and the totals for the day bring smiles to the faces of faithful workers, dirty, weary, but happy.

→ All the proceeds from the sale of waste paper go to the G. A. Fritzsche Scholarship Memorial Fund. Gordon Goede hands to Mr. Korn a check for paper collected in one of the drives. Each year the fund provides a scholarship for some worthy student who plans to go to college.

THE SCHOOL

Every Tuesday is Stamp and Bond day at Bay View, and for the past year each student has bought a stamp or a bond a week. The grand total of purchases since Pearl Harbor crossed the $1,000,000 mark in April.

The School at War

War has brought to countless Americans a heightened realization of the value of the democratic ideal. It has made teachers proud of the principles on which our educational system is founded; it has made teachers, always remembering boys in their teens are being asked to lay down their lives for their country, rededicate themselves to the age old task of trying to prepare youth for the exigencies of life.

When grim war entered every classroom, it created a motivation without which learning is for many students little beyond dull discipline. War made it possible for teachers, using the precious idealism of youth, to develop the sturdy virtues of thrift and initiative. Above all, war has developed in the many, not just the few, that quality without which no democracy can survive—leadership. It has made Americans.

War has demanded and received from teachers and students alike service above and beyond the call of duty.

In Memoriam

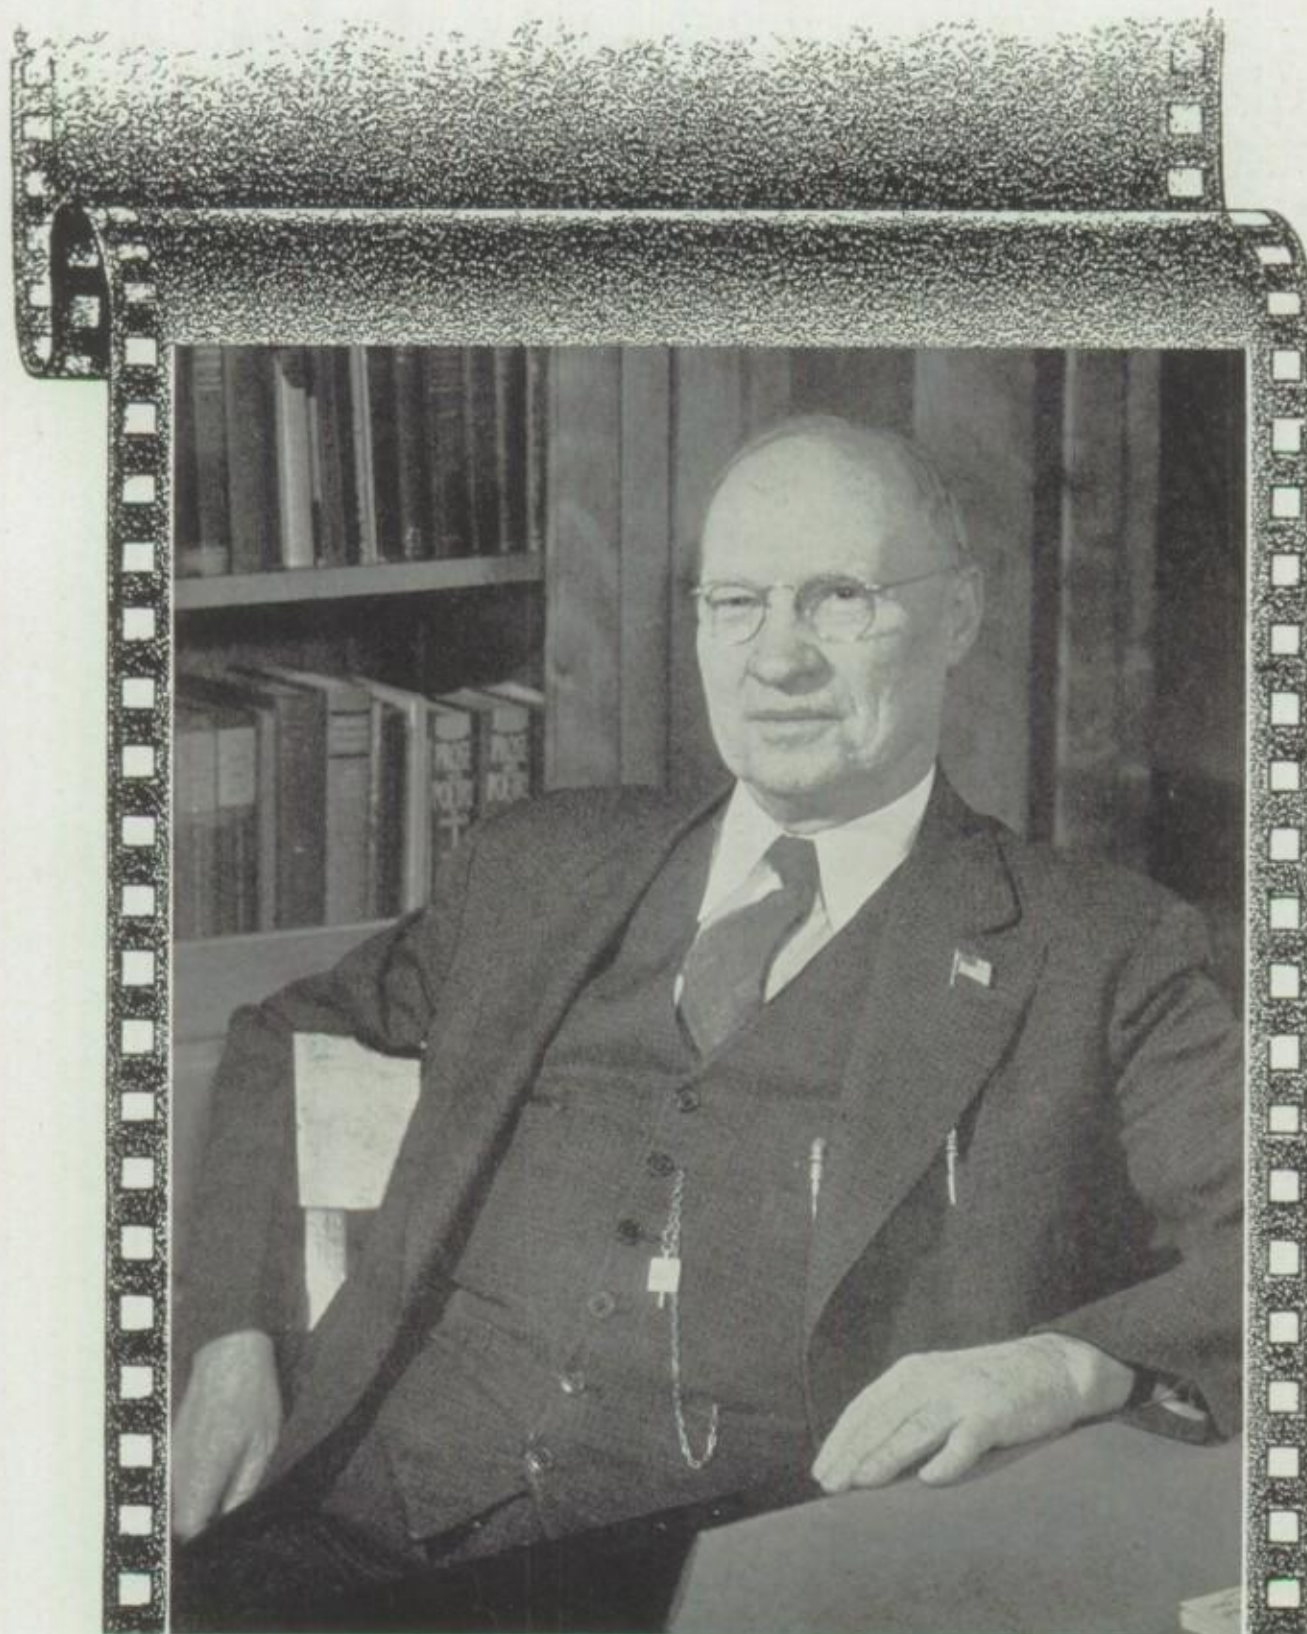

CAROL DE la HUNT

On the quiet afternoon of August 7, 1943, friends of Miss Carol De la Hunt gathered to bid her farewell, the final chapter in the life of a Bay View teacher had been written, a life filled with dramatic successes, creative adventures, artistic appreciation, and deep friendship.

"She walked in beauty," spoke the earnest voice of the clergyman. "Bay View will not be the same without her," said Dr. Korn to the student group assembled for the opening day of school in early September. "During ten years of service we had come to know her as a tireless worker who held high the ideals and the best interests of this school, and who gave unselfishly of herself—gave of herself to the students who were entrusted to her care."

Life Advisement

It is axiomatic that no life advisement system can function unless students are regular in attendance.

The responsibility of deciding the validity of excuses presented by those who have been absent at Bay View rests in the hands of the vice-principal, Dr. Fox. It is a task that requires sternness, tact, and, above all, judgment mellowed by a sense of humor.

Fred L. Fox

Life Advisement

MR. WHITCOMB, Chief Counselor

The "School at War" places a grave burden of responsibility upon its counselors and homeroom advisors, for they must guide youth at a time when all plans for the future seem but feeble straws in the turbulence of world affairs. They must prepare the Bay View boy and girl of today with the confidence in himself which will enable him to face unflinchingly a challenging era, and at the same time safeguard him from rash decisions resulting from the prevalent emotional fervor of wartime.

Besides their usual job of developing character, the counselors now have many additional duties. The problem of part-time work has attained larger proportions than ever before. Many students, most of them seniors, carry lightened programs and work half days, thus satisfying their urge to enter industry without sacrificing educational needs. The counselors must assist in compiling the complete files of those students entering the armed services, including the records of personality, deportment, and extra-curricular activities.

Yes, the "School at War" demands much from its counselors, but the fruits of their labor, they hope, will be clearly evident when time gives perspective and peace is once more with us.

Eight members of the faculty, who because of the nature of their work do not guide homeroom groups, nevertheless contribute their full share to student life at Bay View. Mr. Berg, Mr. Tomkiewicz, and Mr. Weller are in the industrial arts department; Mr. Matthei, Mr. Meyer and Miss Borgal serve in the physical training department. Mr. Williams, until he was called into the Service, was head of the music department. Mrs. Mohrbacher is the librarian.

Lifting full young voices in song, the Male Chorus, exuberant yet earnest, expresses the spirit of all the activities of Bay View.

The Annual

The present war has brought to us the undeniable realization that all must fight, that every person in every city, town, and village must strive for the victory which means our future security; hence, no theme could be more significant for this 1944 Oracle Annual than "The School at War," and no mode of presentation could more vividly convey the swift tempo of daily living than the motion picture film.

Only those closely associated with the Annual in all of its varied stages of development can truly appreciate the vast amount of work involved. Careful page planning and photographing were necessary to obtain the most attractive composition. Picture-taking schedules had to be arranged for as many as forty "shots" in one day to eliminate unnecessary trips for the photographer. As soon as the photographs were returned, they were marked and sent on to the engravers. Meanwhile, all written material had to be prepared, typed, and organized for the printers into whose skillful hands was entrusted the first rough draft of the book.

Wartime restrictions again created numerous problems in this, the third Bay View Annual born in the shadow of war. Because of the scarcity of film and limited space, only brief glimpses of the school's numerous war and club activities could be presented. To comply with government regulations concerning the use of paper, we were able to retain the same number of pages as last year's book only by using a somewhat lighter weight paper.

That the school was behind us one-hundred per cent was evidenced by the deluge of subscriptions in the first few days of the campaign. Commercials were broadcast each morning and afternoon, and noon-hour audiences were entertained in the auditorium for three days with colorful skits: a riotous movie studio scene where screen tests were being filmed, a student magician complete with a live pigeon, and climaxing the campaign, a huge ten-foot Annual with living pictures of outstanding events of former yearbooks.

Close co-operation and an unselfish contribution of time and effort made this 1944 Oracle Annual a book we, the annual staff, are proud to place in the hands of our fellow-students. We have attempted to capture on these pages the prevailing spirit of determination, the will to win displayed by Bay View students. It is our wish that this book carry forever between its lines this graphic portrayal of a portion of our country's youth and their service to her in time of need.

In wartime the editor of the Bay View Oracle newspaper finds himself confronted with an abundance, not a dearth of news. Every week he must select from the great number of stories that come to his desk. As each day there are bond and paper day announcements, so each issue of the paper always carries two big stories. In addition, the day often brings an abundance of news of Bay View boys now receiving their training in this country or of those who are returning on furlough from many theatres of war. The year, too, has been marked by many special auditorium programs at which students have received recognition for meritorious wartime service. Bay View has been especially fortunate this year to have had many fine outside speakers attracted to the school largely because of its remarkable record in the sale of War Stamps and Bonds and in the salvage campaigns.

STAR REPORTERS

For the editors of the newspaper the Wednesday preceding the publication is a big day. All students who go to the printers are excused by Dr. Fox, present their slips to the teachers whose classes they must miss, and arrange for their make-up work. There is the collecting of many stories that have come in Tuesday night and the usual last-minute struggling with headlines.

Then the trek to the printers begins. Streetcar passes are collected from trusting teachers, coats and caps are donned hurriedly, and a minute is taken out by the editor-in-chief to check on figures for the bond sales and to be sure once more that all stories are on their way to the printers.

There is always plenty of work to be done at North American, but there are moments, too, when every one stands around and waits for the next galley to be run off. By noon of Wednesday, if luck has been good, one page at least has been set up and proofread, and by four o'clock the first printing of the galleys of the entire newspaper has been completed.

Boys' Club

Recreation, leadership, sportsmanship, education, and, above all, good clean fun—these every year await the members of Bay View's Boys' Club. By actual participation in open air athletic meetings such as the one held in Humboldt Park last fall, the boys learn valuable lessons in sportsmanship and in team work.

Educational films accompanied by lectures furnished many a profitable eighth hour for the members of Boys' Club. "Slim" Williams, an Alaskan "sour-dough," through movies and vivid word pictures, told the members of the Club about life in Alaska. Geography and history were combined with affairs of the day, for Mr. Williams, in the picturesque vernacular of the great Northwest, explained the importance of the Alcan Highway. At another meeting, wild animal life and adventures in the Rockies were realistically presented to Boys' Club members by Mr. Cleveland Grant, well-known explorer-naturalist and lecturer.

Boys' Club

Because the boys in school today are facing military duty tomorrow, Boys' Club is especially interested in preparing its members for this task. A section of captured German newsreel contrasted the propaganda of the Third Reich with the official U. S. Government films of the A-36 Mustang attack plane.

The members of Boys' Club are fast becoming men, and, as they grow into new experiences, they must have guidance. Bay View is seeing to that guidance by providing an organization with a purpose—Boys' Club. This is designed to instill within the boys of Bay View a camaraderie which will be carried with them throughout their lives.

Girls' Club

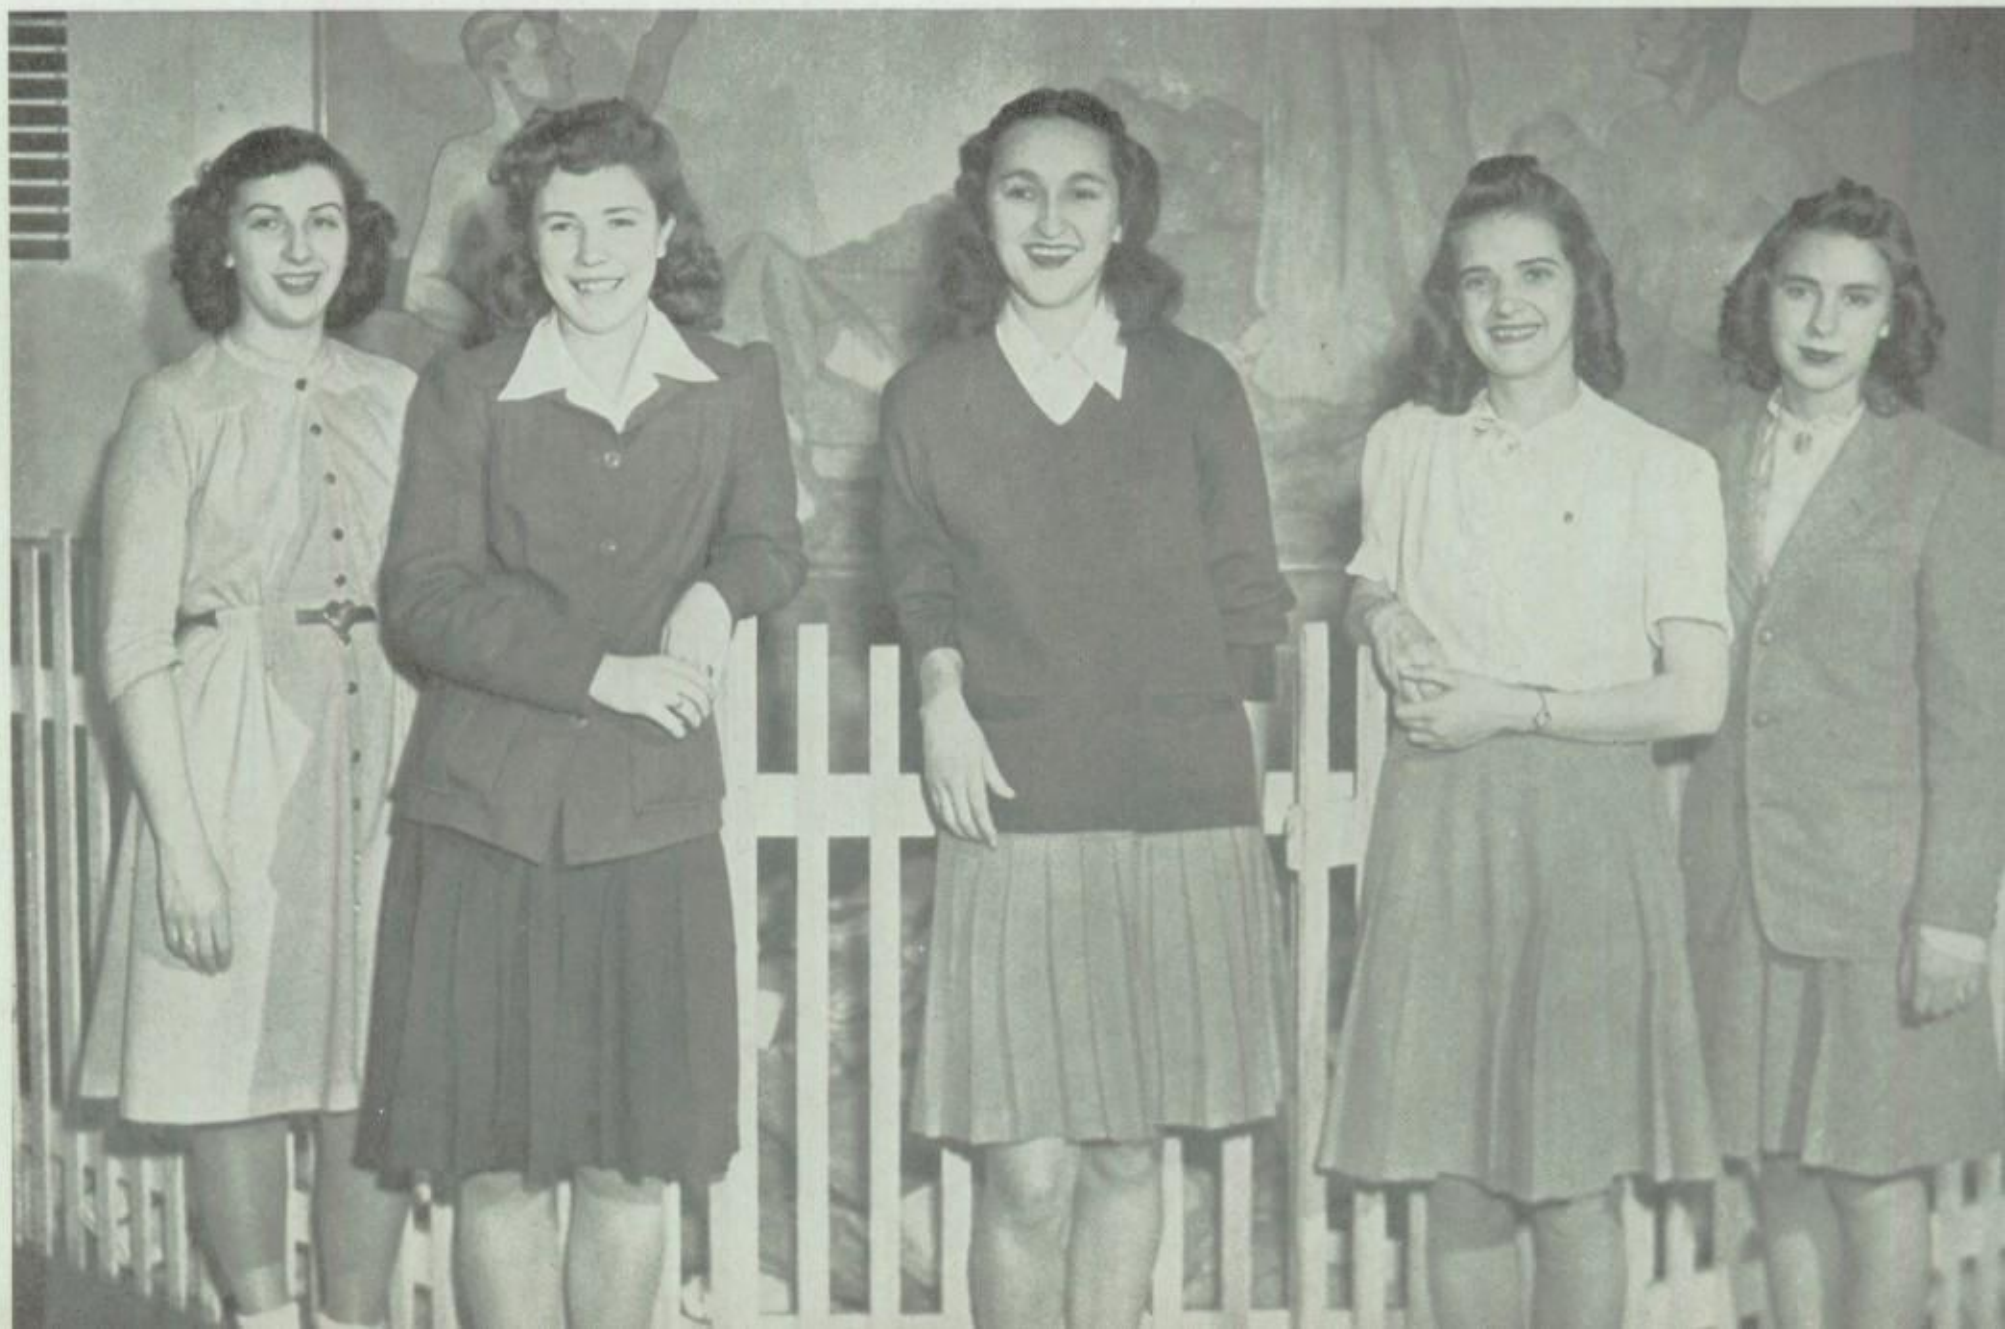

The familiar announcement "Girls' Club meets today" always creates a sudden manifestation of enthusiasm and anticipation among most members of the club as they search hurriedly through their purses for the elusive membership card. Again it is time to attend another of those long-awaited eighth hours of superlative entertainment.

High on the popularity poll of the programs was that hilarious play entitled "Ladies Alone." Other features of note were the interesting variety programs and the several parties in the gymnasium where the girls danced to the tunes of the school dance band.

To help each girl solve her particular wardrobe problems and to display really fashionable apparel, the club again presented its annual style show on April 6. Especially helpful was the accented war motif which proved that charm is possible even when our primary job is winning a war.

Girls' Club

A liberal contribution to the war effort was effected when Girls' Club organized its new project—knitting afghans for the Red Cross. The project, open to all knitters, consisted of making six-inch colored squares in plain knitting with no knots. One hundred such squares made an afghan that may some day give warmth and comfort to a convalescing soldier-alumnus of Bay View. Sincere patriotism, plus the added incentive of homeroom and individual competition, made the project a big success.

Under the expert guidance of faculty advisors and a crew of competent and aggressive officers, Girls' Club made this another memorable year of service. A $50 War Bond was again presented to the G. A. Fritsche Memorial Scholarship Fund as the club's yearly benefit contribution.

Dramatic Club

Entertainment is what the Dramatic Club members asked for during the past year and entertainment was what they received. One-act plays have always been the favorite kind of drama with Dramatic Club members who desire a chance to act, and for the others who want to see what their fellow-dramatists can do.

"Three's a Crowd" was the first of a series of one-act plays presented. East Study Hall rocked with laughter as the disgruntled couple argued on a park bench while little sister, the unwelcome third, whimpered noisily on the adjoining bench.

As the man-shortage became more acute, the next play (a rollicking comedy) had an all-girl cast. In "Betty Behave," Betty found herself on the wrong end of a joke she planned for someone else.

Dramatic Club

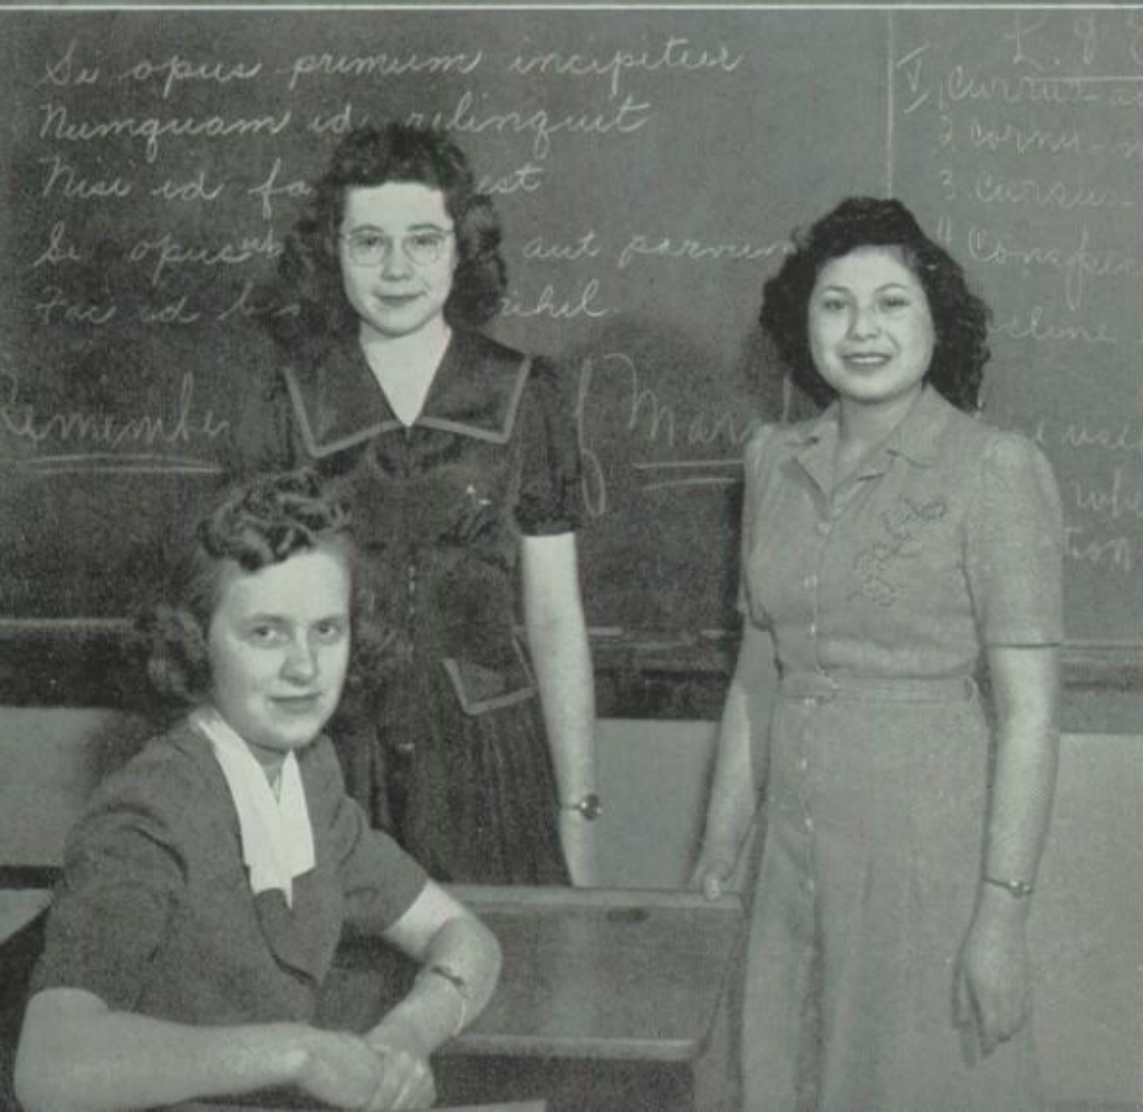

The climax of the first semester's work came with the presentation of the annual Christmas play "Mimi Lights the Candle," the story of a kind girl who cared nothing for gifts for herself, but wanted only to see the poor children have a happy Christmas. This play carried out the tradition of a religious background for each Christmas play.

Humorous monologues have always made popular programs, and varied with a few musical numbers they composed a diversified program to intersperse the long series of one-act plays during the second semester.

Some people can always look at the lighter side of any situation. The comedy "For Pete's Sake" was another one-act play in which the leading character saw the humorous side of the picture even when she was left practically waiting at the church.

Perhaps the most unusual event on the Dramatic Club calendar for the past year was the play written by a member of one of the speech classes. Speech students wrote plays as projects, and the best were to be chosen for presentation. The choice finally narrowed down to "But the Sun Smiled Through," which was chosen the best and most suitable for presentation before the Dramatic Club.

Foreign Language Club

LA FIESTA

The students of today are the citizens of tomorrow, and tomorrow's citizens must be good neighbors. The world of tomorrow will be smaller, countries closer, and peoples nearer than they are now.

The Foreign Language Club at Bay View is a source from which the students gain knowledge of the customs of other lands. These students realize that the manners of others are queer only as long as they are not a part of their own lives.

The climax of this year's Foreign Language Club program was "La Fiesta," the colorful Christmas party held in the gymnasiums. Candy, cake, soft drinks—refreshments of every sort—lapel pins, watch chains, bracelets, necklaces (all made by students), variety shows prepared and directed by students—all these helped to make "La Fiesta" a gala event in the school's activities.

And, as the national ideas and the ideals of the various countries are incorporated into their own way of life, Bay View's foreign language students are becoming well-educated cosmopolitans, ready to face the new world of tomorrow.

Round Table

In keeping with the on-to-a-quick-victory spirit which is pulsating in American life and stimulating every patriotic mind to get the most from his red and blue ration points, the first meeting of Round Table brought forth an original comedy "Keeping Alive."

Quick to answer the challenge: Resolved: That high school students under 18 years of age should be permitted to work more than two hours a school day, the negative team won the decision of the judges. The pros and cons discussed in the debate caused a particular stir because the question concerned many members working part-time in war plants.

As an extra attraction Round Table presented Philip Noble, noted lecturer and traveler, who talked about "The Charm of Old New England." Several hundred students crowded the main floor of the auditorium to see the colorful movies of reconstructed Old New England villages and of the scenic beauties which meet the eye of the tourist.

Round Table

Round Table election has always been the high-light of every semester. Members rush to the auditorium to get a seat "up front" where they can't miss any detail of the candidates' election skits which are usually written and produced entirely by the students themselves. This year the skits ranged from "A Journey to a Star" with The Comets to a side glance into the lives of Socrates and Plato.

For the first time in the history of any Bay View club, the Round Table required candidates for election to complete a preparatory course in parliamentary law and officers' training. The valuable knowledge and experience offered in this course is open only to those who can qualify in scholarship, earnestness, and aptitude.

A well-rounded program of dramatics, dancing, singing, debating, and music gave all members an opportunity to participate in the activities of their choice.

X Club, ever mindful of the primary reason for its existence—to promote high scholarship—continued a program of honoring those who attained outstanding scholastic success with special awards and of tutoring students who needed extra assistance.

That club members are not grinders even though they maintain excellent grades, was proved without a doubt when at the rap! rap! of the president's gavel the first meeting of the spring term was called to order to discuss the vital topic—Resolved: That the hole in the doughnut is much more important than the glue on the flypaper. They began the first of four meetings designed solely for entertainment.

During the course of the year X Club devoted much of its time and effort to the war program. Sponsoring a school convocation on the subject of race relations, X Club presented Miss Elizabeth J. Alpenfels last fall. Later a play brought to the attention of the students the vital role of nutrition in bringing victory.

Other plays emphasizing the value of a high school education and its part in a successful future were given to freshman and junior groups in conjunction with the life advisement program.

All in all, X Club has had a full year, and its members have been leaders in every activity of the school.

Science Club

Science Club officers and faculty advisors, in adjusting to life in a school during wartime, decided that much of the work of the club should be done in small sectional meetings where serious study is possible; accordingly, groups of approximately twenty-five members chosen for their interest and ability met in the general science, biology, chemistry, aviation, and photography sections to discuss special topics and make scientific projects.

The general science students prepared topics on subjects ranging all the way from motor building to the raising of tropical fish. The biology section identified trees and plants in Humboldt Park, and on the school campus studied the raising of such animals as rabbits, chickens, and ducks. In the second semester they tested soils and made preparations for Victory gardens.

The chemistry group, after seeing the Bohemian glass blowers, decided to try their skill with glass tubes, and were successful enough to make initials and fancy pins in glass. In the laboratory, chemistry students made a variety of useful products, such as tooth powder, hand lotion, and soap.

The members of the aviation section busied themselves with such projects as the building of a recording weather vane, a machine gun, a wind tunnel, and a rain gauge as well as the construction of communication lights for a plane.

Those who were enrolled in the photography section had many pleasant experiences in the snapping and developing of pictures. A part of their time was devoted to the making of pictures for the Oracle newspaper and the Oracle Annual.

For all the students in the Science Club there were interesting lectures and demonstrations throughout the year.

Art Club

An enveloping silence of respect permeates the crowded auditorium, and slowly, but with solemn strength, taps re-echo their lonely notes. Black velvet curtains part gently, revealing impenetrable darkness. A shaft of light cuts through the blackness and pours down upon the words in gold, "They Died That You Might Live," brightening the pictured faces of eighteen boys who have made the supreme sacrifice for their country. This is the impressive monument which greets visitors and students alike in the first floor lobby and illustrates the co-operative spirit of the Art Club which, together with the Manual Training department, produced Bay View's War Memorial.

In accordance with the war theme, the Art Club has helped make students more acutely conscious of their duties toward their country by preparing original posters to promote the sale of War Stamps and Bonds, not to mention such evidences of originality and skill as shown in folders for War Bonds designed and made by club members.

Whether it be to arouse the desire of everyone to attend various Bay View functions or to advertise Oracle campaigns, the Art Club has been willing to lend its talents by creating appropriate posters, and this year one of its members is lending his artistic ability to this very book, the Oracle Annual.

Ushers' Club

Moving efficiently through the auditorium at school convocations and on evenings of public performances, figures clad in trim red and black uniforms guide students and visitors to their seats. These figures represent Bay View's youngest organization, the Ushers' Club, which was founded four years ago.

Originally, the Ushers' Club was composed of a volunteer group of boys, frequently members of the football squad and Boys' Club, who assisted only at programs to which the community was invited. To meet a real need for an organized crew, however, a permanent club was evolved with officers and constitution for the transaction of business.

The corps proper is divided into two crews, which serve on alternate evenings. Each is headed by three captains who are appointed by the faculty sponsors, Mr. Coubal and Mr. Book.

Standards for membership in the Ushers' Club require a high degree of dependability and good scholarship. Officers and captains are chosen for continued faithful service to the club.

To provide a more professional atmosphere at public performances, red and black satin uniforms were purchased, and to meet the expense of them a talent show was given featuring the outstanding entertainers in the school. The show proved so successful that it is now a Bay View tradition known as the Home Talent show.

This year the Ushers' Club has added to its numerous activities the seating of students at the regular Tuesday morning patriotic song-fests.

Broadcasters

A sudden hush falls on the little group assembled in the broadcasting booth as a technician's skilled fingers twist the dials which miraculously unite the school through the medium of radio. Another Bay View broadcast is under way, extending its influence to the farther-most extremities of the building.

Now in its fifth year of service, the public address system is carrying a heavier burden than ever before of essential wartime broadcasts. After the Call to the Colors, stirring martial music opens the morning program. Announcements and skits, morning and afternoon, effectively urge all-out participation in scrap paper drives, and to climax each broadcast, a stamp and bond appeal is read which originated in one of the Creative Writing classes.

A staff of four announcers, John Krainik, Richard Jones, Stanley Nastal, and Henry Schade, alternate in the handling of each program, assuming complete charge of the entire broadcast. Responsibility for accurate transmission rests upon the shoulders of a crew of technicians headed by Donald Barber, manager, and Elmer Hammer, projection manager. Daily, the close co-operation of these two crews makes possible a well informed, united school at war.

Stage Crew

Behind the scenes of every Bay View stage production, whether it be operetta or Tuesday morning program of patriotic singing, the stage crew acts as an invisible force which guides each production to success. Each crew member is well trained in some part of backstage technique, becoming adept in handling lights, props, scenery, or in performing one of a score of other duties.

The work of the stage crew begins when a program goes into production and continues until all is in order after the final curtain. A member of the stage crew must be present whenever the stage is used, whether it be for operetta rehearsal or practice for a noon-hour skit.

Boys who are dependable and cooperative are chosen as members of the crew, and those who by meritorious service and qualities of leadership have proved themselves worthy to help organize backstage work are given managerial positions. As manager for the first semester, Joseph Schoendorf did an excellent job as did his successors, John Krainik and Gerald Morrisse.

"You Can't Take It With You"

"You Can't Take It With You," the sparkling Broadway comedy which has gained national fame for its delightful characterizations and refreshing humor, reigned for two hilarious evenings on Bay View's stage. Careful casting, which discovered for each of the many roles just the right person, who, under skillful directing, became an actor, spelled certain success for this year's senior class play.

Individualism seemed the note in every characterization, but two were especially outstanding. Emily Oleson as Mrs. Penny Sycamore, the scatter-brained mother, completely captivated the hearts of the audience with her irresistibly giddy mannerisms. The kindly old grandfather, Henry Schade, with his mellow philosophy of living, provided a restraining influence on the eccentricities of his family, and yet by his example encouraged everyone to be himself.

Complications arose when Tony Kirby, Tom Meredith, fell in love with Penny's daughter, Alice, Irene Marten, and the two attempted to introduce Tony's socialite family to the capricious Sycamores.

An excellent supporting cast, which included the "Roosian" ballet instructor; Essie, his aspiring pupil; Mr. De Pinna, the milkman who came for a day and stayed eight years; Olga, the grand duchess; Rheba and Donald, the colored cook and her boy friend; and a temperamental actress, Gay Wellington, were responsible for much of the success of the performance.

When the audience departed, they took away with them pleasant memories of one of the most truly entertaining class plays ever to be presented at Bay View.

"Hats Off"

Indians, swashbuckling sailors, and hoopskirted maidens are a cross section of the merry-makers in Dame Bly's Mermaid Inn who supply the fun and intrigue in Bay View's 1944 musical success, "Hats Off." Lovers and moonlight contrasted the wild dance of the red men, to fill the atmosphere of "Hats Off" with the savage and romantic drama of yesteryear.

Gayly splashed with colorful costumes, "Hats Off" recalls the adventures of the nation's first naval hero, John Paul Jones, and his daring crew of the "Ranger" while it was docked at port during the Revolutionary War. Landais, a renegade ship captain, with his affable aide Booodle, villainously plots to obtain the "Ranger" and in doing so endangers the life of William Courtleigh, Anne's brother, who is a captain in the British forces. With the aid of Lieut. Dale, Red Jerry, and other loyal members of the crew, Landais' plan is thwarted and Captain Courtleigh released upon the arrival of a reprieve from Gen. Washington. As Commodore Jones receives tokens of appreciation from notables all over the world, the act ends leaving the audience with the assurance that the spirit of John Paul Jones is still within our fighting men everywhere.

Glee Clubs

Members of the Glee Clubs and the a Cappella Choir knew a never-to-be-forgotten moment when the perfect attention of the audience came like a wave to them and they felt the joy of singing "A Pledge to the Flag," "When Johnnie Comes Marching Home," "Play Gypsies, Dance Gypsies," or "Beautiful Savior" at the Music Festival in January.

For the audience there was not only the pleasure of hearing well trained, fresh voices singing in harmony, but there was always a thrill in seeing uniformly dressed groups moving with grace and ease into position before they began to sing as a unit.

It is this pleasant combination of the sight and the sound that makes the work of the singing choruses live long after convocations and music festivals have become memories.

DANCE BAND

Senior Band

The pattern of a fully rounded school-at-war program would not be complete without our rousing band to keep spirits singing and patriotism aflame. Its stirring music heard each morning by transcription and accompanied by a singing audience at the regular Tuesday morning programs was an ever urging power to break present bond and stamp records and aim for even higher ones.

Something new was the successful War Bond Premiere sponsored by the musical organizations in January. Feet tapped in martial rhythm, and patriotic fervor ran high when the band, under Mr. M. D. Williams, played "Let the Bugle Sound" and "United Nations Rhapsody."

The band made good use of its perfected marching technique in a maneuver not on the gridiron when it paraded through Bay View streets and with the Boys' Glee Club collected over two tons of scrap paper in less than an hour.

Senior Orchestra

The curtain goes up, the raised baton synchronizes every performer, and the annual music festival opens with selections from Jerome Kern's "Roberta." For the orchestra the peak of a successful year is marked when, fortified by long hours of diligent rehearsals, at last they present Mozart's "Don Giovanni," and then, with Dorothy Jasinski at the piano, playing with free and consistent poetic expression, they give the audience Schumann's "A Minor Concerto" for piano and orchestra.

As in the past, the playing of the senior orchestra marked every big school gathering throughout the year. In ensembles many of the musicians in the orchestra became well known to Milwaukee audiences. Twelve students from Bay View were proud to be selected for the All-City Junior Orchestra, and twenty-three for the All-City Senior Orchestra.

To those who measure athletic success in terms of victories and defeats, the past gridiron season will give small comfort.

But to the more discerning who see in athletic competition the development of the spirit of team work, self-sacrifice, and the ability to take hard knocks, and come back to fight another day, the 1943 Bay View football squad will rank high. They all knew that despite the absence of victories a loyal school body was always behind them.

With the Cross Country Team in possession of two championship crowns, first in the city and first in the state, Coach William Matthei ended his 14th season of cross country work at Bay View. His hill and dalers ran up a string of 14 consecutive victories in dual competitions before tasting defeat at the hands of Washington High. The Purgolders, however, were twice listed among the victims of the Viewites later in the season.

This year's squad ranked among the best in Bay View's history and really deserved the title of Champions. Meeting the finest teams in dual competition, Bay View prepared itself for sweeping both the City and State titles. The highlight of the whole athletic season was the work of the hill and dalers.

RECORDS—Dick Czarapata set a new record of 11.12 over the Racine Washington Park course—2.1 miles. He added another of 11.30.2 over Lincoln High's Lake Park circuit—2.2 miles.

CITY MEET—Upsetting the field and showing surprising strength, the Viewite harriers ran off with their fourth straight City crown. Washington High, pre-meet favorite, came in second. Coach Matthei's "Mighty Mite," Richard Czarapata, took third place and led his team-mates to victory. Robert Frank claimed eighth place; Robert Hein, twelfth place; James Guhl, thirteenth place, and John Wagner, fourteenth place—the first five for the Red and Black.

STATE MEET—The Mattheimen, repeating their triumphs over their city rivals, scored another upset and annexed the W.I.A.A. State title. As in all of the dual victories throughout the season, Dick Czarapata paced his team-mates, taking fifth place. Bob Frank, Jim Guhl, Capt. Herb Royal, and Bob Hein—seventh, eighth, eleventh, and twentieth places respectively, completed the Bay scoring.

Class Notes

The January graduates enrolled in a time of peace and graduated during the third year of a destructive war, a war which resulted in changes in their high school programs as well as in their future. Victory art work, paper and bond drives, filing information about boys in the armed services—these were some of the main wartime activities in which the students participated. Their contribution to the G. A. Fritsche Memorial Scholarship Fund was a one-hundred dollar war bond, presented by Paul Niland with the words, "In selecting this gift, we have shown our faith in our country's future."

Out of 111 graduates, 48 planned to go to work, 37 boys were already inducted into the armed forces, 26 students are continuing their education as civilians in college. Arline Neher, Paul Niland, Emily Oleson, Joseph Schoendorf, Richard Suhm, and Della Zieroth were elected as the Class Commissioners.

Words spoken by Arline Neher in her Address of Welcome are typical of the January Class. "Memories of Bay View's sheltering warmth and comfort will be with the soldier as he lies in some far away jungle fox-hole, sails the seven seas, or wings his way through the stratosphere."

Class Commission

Although the June Class numbered 474 when they entered as freshmen in 1940, they were only 272 in number on Commencement Day, June 9, 1944. Many of the boys had discarded their checked trousers and long jackets for the smart military uniform of the United States long before the day of graduation. The atmosphere of war pervaded the years of 1941-'44; achieving the million-dollar mark in the sale of War Bonds and Stamps in April of 1944 will long be remembered by the graduates.

Katherine Doepke, Robert Frank, John Krainik, Emmett O'Connell, and Carolyn Remitz were elected members of the Class Commission. Their chief duties were collecting class dues, obtaining orders for commencement programs, and deciding upon the class gift of a one-hundred-dollar war bond to be added to the G. A. Fritsche Memorial Scholarship Fund. The class chose Marion Nelesen as the representative of 1944 in the Bay View Alumni Association.

A survey which was taken of the 272 graduates showed that 63 planned to attend college, 134 planned to go to work, 5 were to assist at home, and 70 boys were expecting to be called into the Armed Forces in the summer.

MEETING THE DEMAND FOR WARTIME PRODUCTION

Nordberg's contribution to the war effort has been supplying the tools of war needed by our armed forces. Vital supplies to our forces overseas and to our Allies are being carried in vessels propelled by Nordberg Diesel and steam engines. The production of chemicals, strategic metals and other materials for war are produced through the aid of Nordberg machinery. In addition to the regular line of Nordberg products that have gone to war, vast quantities of naval ordnance have also been supplied.

Dearest Dorothy:

We have known each other for a long time and we have had fun to gether and have also had our little quarrels. No harm done though. If you look at this look in the future years, I am sure it will bring you many memories.

Hope you have a nice summer vacation, but don't work too hard. You can think of me once in a while during the summer too, I will either be in school or at work. And don't forget, say off at the leap. Don't do too much choosing around.

Look of Dick and three to you in the future years a very nice girl. May that look always follow you but never catch up.

Love,

Dora, Jerry.
